Freehold & Maintenance:

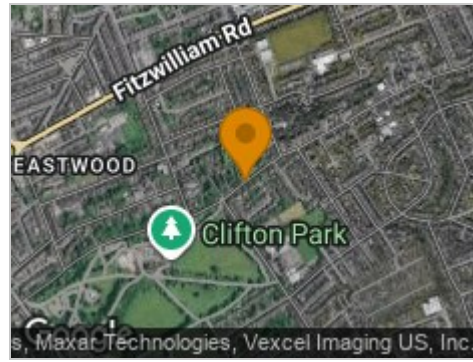

The property is sold with a share of the freehold. Costs for works are generally shared between freeholders for communal areas or structural issues affecting the whole building. Any works specific to one side of the building (e.g., remedial works for the flats on that side) are the responsibility of the freeholder of that side. Therefore, if a buyer owns all three flats on one side, they would cover costs for that side only, while continuing to share any communal or structural expenses.
